

They asked if you would help address with questions or comment that the 1 and 5 women raped on campus is a false narrative and false statistic. See the articles cited below for points of reference. Also, a couple of shots at the rape equals regret wouldn't hurt. The hearing will be this Tuesday.

Thanks, Richard.

<https://pjmedia.com/trending/title-ix-official-believe-rape-accusations-even-if-false-because-its-that-persons-truth/>

Title IX Official: Believe Rape Accusations Even if False, Because It's 'That Person's Truth'

Earlier this month, Clackamas Community College Title IX coordinator and Dean of Human Resources Patricia Wieck told The College Fix why believing accusers rather than waiting for evidence is important: Believing survivors means let's sit down and understand each other's experience. Let's believe what that person said, he or she has experienced, that we have experienced. It may not be the truth, as has been determined, but it is that person's truth and what they were going through.

<https://www.avoiceformen.com/mens-rights/landmark-case-shines-light-on-real-campus-rape-epidemic-equating-regret-with-rape/>

Landmark case shines light on real campus rape 'epidemic': equating regret with rape

The Doe v. W&L decision is among the most important events for wrongly accused college men in a long time because it shines a light on the root cause of the so-called campus rape "epidemic"—something this blog has called the "regret asymmetry" that separates the sexes.

Thereafter, Jane attended a presentation by W&L's Title IX Officer, Lauren Kozak, who introduced an Internet article the court would later label "gender biased" against males to alleged that "regret equals rape." Kozak said that "everyone, herself included, is starting to agree with.

<https://www.city-journal.org/html/campus-rape-myth-13061.html>

The Campus Rape Myth,

The reality: bogus statistics, feminist victimology, and university-approved sex toys. Heather MacDonald

<https://www.washingtonexaminer.com/no-1-in-5-women-have-not-been-raped-on-college-campuses>

No, 1 in 5 women have not been raped on college campuses

<https://www.usnews.com/opinion/blogs/economic-intelligence/2013/10/24/statistics-dont-back-up-claims-about-rape-culture>

The Rape 'Epidemic' Doesn't Actually Exist

<http://time.com/3633903/campus-rape-1-in-5-sexual-assault-setting-record-straight/>

Setting the Record Straight on '1 in 5'

Christopher Krebs and Christine Lindquist are Senior Research Social Scientists at RTI International, an independent, nonprofit research institute. They are both in the Center for Justice, Safety, and Resilience at RTI, and they directed the Campus Sexual Assault Study, which was funded by the National Institute of Justice and completed in 2007.

First and foremost, the 1-in-5 statistic is not a nationally representative estimate of the prevalence of sexual assault, and we have never presented it as being representative of anything other than the population of senior undergraduate women at the two universities where data were collected—two large public universities, one in the South and one in the Midwest.